Course Description

This course introduces students to the concept of a database management system and its role in the IT infrastructure of any business. Students will use a database management system to develop a database and use this database to store and manipulate data. Students will also be asked to interpret database diagrams and create database objects based on their meaning.

Rationale

Every modern business needs to maintain information in every area of its company and database management systems are a key technology used in managing this information. It is an IT professional's job, therefore, to understand the uses of a database and how this technology is applied within a business to solve information management problems.

Learning Outcomes

In keeping with NSCC's approach to portfolio learning, learners will have demonstrated the ability to:

- 1. Follow best practices in the structuring of data components.
- 2. Implement a data storage solution using one or more DB structures.
- 3. Use a DB structure for input and output of data.
- 4. Determine the best data management platform for the customer needs.
